2016 Version Summary of Changes

The ICD-10-PCS Reference Manual changes for the annual update, from public comment and internal review, are listed below. Page numbers refer to the FY2016 version.

The update year “FY 2015” was revised to “FY 2016”

Page 22            Last paragraph, the words “List of Codes” was revised to “Definitions.”

After the subsection entitled “Index”, the subsection “Definitions” below was added.
“The ICD-10-PCS Definitions contain the official definitions of ICD-10-PCS values in characters 3 through 7 of the seven-character code, and may also provide additional explanation or examples. The definitions are arranged in section order, and designate the section and the character within the section being defined.

The Medical and Surgical section body part value definitions refer from the body part value to corresponding anatomical terms. The Medical and Surgical section device definitions refer from the device value to corresponding device terms or manufacturer’s names. The Substance value definitions in the Administration section refer from the substance value to a common substance name or manufacturer’s substance name. These definitions are also sorted by common term and listed separately as the Body Part Key, Device Key, and Substance Key respectively.
The ICD-10-PCS Device Aggregation Table contains entries that correlate a specific ICD-10-PCS device value with a general device value to be used in tables containing only general device values.”

Page 25            Subsection, “List of Codes” revised
Subsection title “List of Codes” revised to “Tabular Order File”
The first paragraph was deleted and replaced with the paragraph below.
“The ICD-10-PCS Order file contains a unique “order number” for each valid code or table “header,” a flag distinguishing valid codes from headers, and both long and short descriptions combined in a single file.”
